

Il giornalino del Centro Nanà

A choir of voices

Many languages and many young people who, in chorus, made their voices heard and narrated past stories, journeys and future dreams.

Journalism, during our workshop, became the tool for experimenting with an alternative experience, where each person, with his or her own voice and in his or her own way, could find a space of visibility.

This simple little newspaper, in its imprecise nature, is an evidence of commitment and participation.

It represents a product that values imperfection, the gradualness of achievement of goals and skills.

The shared construction of this paper represents, therefore, a symbolic reminder of those values and topics that we try, on a daily basis, to urge and promote in youngsters.
