

Il giornalino del Centro Nanà

How to improve the citizens of the future

Europeans' citizens should improve the quality of learning in order to create a more educated community. This needs to happen within schools from a very early age.

Children should be taught the English language so that when they grow up they will be citizens of the world and will be able to communicate with other cultures.

In order to improve schools, more interactive activities, cultural exchanges and travels abroad should be introduced.

In addition, technology in schools such as computers, tablets, and L.I.M. should be implemented.

This kind of improvements would make the learning experience better for every student in Europe.

Authors:

Francesco di Martino

Claudio Cosentino

Umberto De Sumo

Bordka Bodrat

Hanga Karasz

Roza Cia

Hanga Guindly

Giancarlo Formicolaa

